Mayor's Review of Council's First Year

by Mayor André Byham I have taken some time to reflect on the results of one year and some months of this council's accomplishments. I am disappointed in the results of what was to be the people's hopes towards change and prosperity.

Throughout the past year some members of this council have constantly questioned and blocked every progressive movement brought forward. There seems to be a willingness to destroy rather than build, to interfere rather than help out, and to question in detail every line in a manner that accomplishes very little towards a common good.

I have always felt that since I was elected, my vision has been directed to the following concerns:

- 1. Economic Development: short and long term vision
- 2. Waterfront revitalization: the beach looks good and there is more to do.
- 3. Cultural initiatives
- 4. Tourism attraction: partnerships have been worked out with F.N. and Dubreuilville.
- 5. Marketing and promotion of the Township: signage.
- 6. Community-wide revitalization.
- 7. Revitalization/ prepared and ready to go subject to funding.

This vision represents some of the ideals that the people wanted and deserve.

Over the past year, there have been multiple projects that we have tried to move forward, but have met with opposition. For example, here is a list of projects that were delayed by various tactics:

- 1. outdoor skating rink (2.5 months and a barrage of questions in the first year; the rink is something the community wished for and is a success story based on volunteers)
- 2. BR&E refusal to accept the business community's opinions and trying to kill it
- 3. service delivery

review met with skepticism

- 4. Beachfront cleanup in preparation for the 90th anniversary of Chapleau High (a fight to get 4 hours of work done)
- 5. focus on trivial and irrelevant information to hide the obvious problems.

The ratepayer did not get what he deserved. The ratepayer did not get what he voted for.

Being an elected member of Council brings with it roles and responsibilities. I think it is important to remind each other of our obligation to the community as representatives of the people. To paraphrase the Municipal Act,

- 1. A councillor must represent the public and consider the well being and interests of the municipality.
- 2. A councillor must develop and evaluate the policies and programs of the municipality
- 3. A councillor must determine which services the municipality provides
- 4. A councillor must ensure that administrative practices and procedures are in place to implement the decisions of council
- 5. A councillor must maintain the financial integrity of the municipality and carry out his duties under the municipal act or any other act.

I believe that a renewed commitment on behalf of council members is necessary in order to be agents of change. Each councillor has signed up to work towards progress and solutions, and must be well informed in order to participate in the decision-making process. I fully expect that you will be active not only verbally, but by your actions and contributions, by being on committees and by providing your support to the committees you belong to.

I have always been fortunate to be surrounded by good people when I have worked on projects, and expect you to be some of the good people. That is the only way we can go forward.

During the first year in office I have also noted that a culture of disrespect has prevailed in the minds of some people who deal with me as mayor. I am known to be a gentle person and therefore an easy target for those people wanting to vent out their frustrations. This culture stops today. I will not accept less than excellence and courtesy from council and staff. I want you to be part of the process and for that you must be willing to do so.

As we go forward I shall be looking for your presence in any activity that promotes development in Chapleau. As elected officials, your involvement in the community is expected. It is very hard for me to justify your absence and perceived lack of involvement to people when you do not participate in committees and events.

If council members would like to have the opportunity to discuss any issue I have raised in this article, I would be happy to meet each councillor personally to do so.

Museum Study Group Holds First Meeting

The Leisure Committee held the first public meeting on museum revitalization on Tuesday, March 13th. Fifteen people attended and numerous ideas were expressed and developed. All present felt the need to have a more vibrant museum presence in Chapleau.

To quote one participant, "we must remember the importance of being an active body that preserves our history and culture." All agreed that many stories are still untold and many voices unheard.

Conversation centred on how to spotlight these stories and people. The March 17th edition of the Chapleau Express, with its front page a story emerged. Congratulations to Joanne Laughland and George Evans for uncovering a part of Chapleau's history. Many more stories

Responding to an informal survey, the participants unanimously agreed that

- (1) the Town must continue to support and to develop the Museum;
- (2) the Museum reflect the town's history, its ethnic and cultural history;
- (3) the Museum adapt modern technology to enhance collections and displays;
- (4) businesses and service clubs be encouraged to assist with various museum projects;
- (5) the Museum partner with local high schools to develop exhibits and outreach programs.

article, 'Chapleau's Saddest Day', is a timely example of what we discussed. A few scattered facts were researched until wait to be fully revealed. The ideas expressed covered diverse themes and Cont'd on P.2

 interests. Some want to showcase local fine artists. Others wish to invite the community's arts and crafts people to exhibit their creations. Numerous practical ideas were forwarded as ways to involve youth in exhibits and programs. Some expressed great urgency to record stories and family histories before it is too late. One group was keenly motivated to record the genealogical history of citizens. Some suggested we record and display the histories of local service clubs. Some felt it important to research our veterans, to add dimension to whom they were as persons. Time was spent defining the idea of a "museum without walls" or a "museum on wheels". Displays would circulate throughout the community and not simply stand static in the museum building. This would create a larger audience and enhance the museum's profile.

Do you have something to contrib-

Cecil Smith described as 'Master Showman' by George Tremblay takes over the Regent Theatre in Chapleau in 1940

Chapleau Moments

by Michael J. Morris

When Cecil Smith, and his wife Ruth, first arrived in Chapleau on CPR passenger train Number 3, the Dominion, "Len the taxi man" picked them up at the station, loaded their luggage,

Mr. and Mrs. Smith had come to Chapleau on a cold November day in November 1940, to negotiate the purchase of the Regent Theatre. Len's Taxi stand was located in a small building right beside the taxi "dashed up and around the steep horseshoe bridge that spanned the railway yards" then through the downtown to the YMCA, their first home in the community.

The taxi man was Len Perfetto and the theatre.

In his wonderful book about the early days of the movies 'Break at Nine' George Tremblay tells the story of Mr. Smith and the theatre, referring to him as 'Master Showman'. Mr. Tremblay worked as the projectionist at the Chapleau theatre.

Mr. Tremblay describes the train ride from Sudbury, where Mr. Smith had been working as a projectionist. "Hour after hour the train weaved its way through the granite rock cuts, countless freezing lakes and the unbounded forests of the Canadian shield. Finally, just after noon it steamed into Chapleau and lurched to a stop in front of the station complex where a team of railway service people rushed forward to carry out their servicing work."

Mr. Tremblay also provides an interesting insight into Chapleau as it was in 1940.

After disembarking from the train and making their way through a crowd of people boarding the train, the Smith's spotted the taxi cab and upon spotting the, Len "dashed over to help them carry the heavy luggage."

It may come as a surprise to some, but in 1940 Chapleau had "limited amenities to offer casual travellers" and they had been advised to book a room at 'the Y'.

"The YMCA was a large and well maintained wooden building located in the heart of the community (on Lorne Street near where the LCBO is now). It had a good restaurant, clean comfortable rooms and even had reading room for its guests. It even had a bowling alley in the basement..."

At this point, Mr. Tremblay writes, their plans were flexible. If they could negotiate successfully with the theatre owner, they would stay in Chapleau: if not they would return to Sudbury where Mr. Smith had been working as a projectionist. Originally from Medicine Hat, Alberta, Mr. Smith had come east to work for his uncle Charles Mavety, a pioneer in the Canadian movie industry, in 1929.

That night, Mr. Smith worked as projectionist at the theatre, and after the show he and his wife compared notes, agreeing that business would keep on improving, and in the next few days "the finer points of the deal" had been worked out and the theatre license was transferred to Cecil Smith on November 13, 1940.

Having now taken over the theatre, the next challenge facing the Smith's was finding a place to live as apartments were in short supply.

Mr. Tremblay explains: "That was not an easy matter as apartments were in short supply because of the growing number of new railroaders in the town. Being war time (World War II had started in September 1939) the railroad was becoming busier by the day and the railroad company had to bring in more men to fill the need and many of them had families thus creating a housing shortage."

Rev. Frank Leigh, Angelo Bucciarelli, John McLellan, D.O. Payette, Cecil Smith at Chapleau Rotary Club party (Zufelt Collection)

Arthur Simpson, the owner of the Chapleau Post came to the rescue. He had space above his shop on Young Street but there was only one problem: it was only semi-furnished. "It had a complete bathroom and something resembling a kitchen but nothing else. There were no other partitions and the resulting space looked like a giant meeting hall."

Nonetheless, the Smith's took it and over time built part

International Women's Day

On Tuesday evening, Chapleau women celebrated International Women's Day, an event sponsored by CHADWIC HOME & APANO.

Several "Phenomenal Women" were recognized for their contributions to the community, contributions which happen in quiet, behind-the-scenes sorts of ways. Supporting a friend in a time of need, encouraging others to overcome obstacles, sacrificing personal comfort and safety to reach out a helping hand and a child's recognition of her Mom were some of the acknowledgments.

Chapleau's Phenomenal Women help to create a community where people feel included, where everyone is valued.

This year's International Women's Day theme, "Connecting Girls, Inspiring Futures", was validated by the number of young women in attendance, as they heard the reasons for which the evening's Phenomenal Women were acknowledged.

The group of young women drummers, led by Sandy Ruffo, performed for the gathering and heard firsthand the challenge to value our freedoms as women, and the responsibility to safeguard them.

We would like to thank the community for their support over the years, and we know Chapleau will continue supporting CHADWIC HOME & APANO to honour the yearly event and the Phenomenal Women of this community. Thank you, Merci, Meegwetch.

Volunteering is a fun way for teens to share their talents

(NC)If you know some teenagers who might be looking for something different to do, volunteering is a rewarding experience and a great way to build relationships. It's also a way to share skills and talents to really make a difference, say specialists in this field. There are many benefits to volunteering and here are a few:

I n c r e a s e d activity—By participating in volunteer activities, you spend more time exploring the world. Volunteering also allows you to do something different outside your normal daily schedules. A volunteer activity will develop your leadership and teambuilding skills. Through time volunteering, you might even develop a new hobby or passion.

L e a r n i n g outside of the classroom—Volunteering teaches about global and local issues. For example, involvement in activities, such as World Vision's 30 Hour Famine, shows that there are people in the world who are not as fortunate, but there are simple ways to make a difference. Information on the 30 Hour Famine can be found at famine.ca.

B u i l d i n g relationships—You will build relationships where you volunteer. You might meet new friends or create long-time contacts for the future. Parents and kids might consider choosing the same organization so they can spend quality time together

Soaring temperatures haven't slowed things down at all as shooting continues on The Road to Tophet. You may have already seen us around town or filming from overhead. And by the time you all read this, we will have filmed the movie's big bar scenes, starring many Chapleau community members as extras! Excitement is high and things are really heating up as we enter our final days of shooting.

Last Friday The Road to Tophet team let their hair down - or in some cases, did it up - for a night of fun, frivolity, and great music at the Royal Canadian Legion. The night featured the smooth stylings of Juno award winning artist Laura Hubert, accompanied by Peter Hill on the keys. By the end of the night many in attendance could be seen grooving on the dance floor, including your very own Mayor Andre Byham! Ms. Manon Laveille won the grand prize draw, taking home a propane BBQ donated by Collin's Home Hardware. The party continued until the wee hours, making for some very tired faces on set the next morning, and truly a good time was had by all. Heartfelt thanks to all the hard working volunteers who helped to make this event a success, to the Legion for providing a great venue, and to all who came out and enjoyed the night with us!

At this time, we would also like to acknowledge an extremely important contributor and partner to the film. As you read in last week's issue, on March 19 The Road to Tophet team was graciously hosted for dinner by Chapleau Cree First Nation, the Official Sponsor of The Road to Tophet. Cast and crew joined with CCFN Council for a delicious dinner, and the occasion to meet and thank our supporters in person. The entire team of The Road to Tophet wishes to express their sincere appreciation for continued generosity and support of CCFN and Chief Keith 'Keeter' Corston, Deputy Chief Bradley Corston, Councillor Marjorie (Cachagee) Lee, Councillor Norma Caldwell and Councillor Nathalie Barsalou. We must also mention Band Administrator Brian Edwards, who has worked tirelessly on our behalf, both on and off the set. On behalf of the entire Road to Tophet team, chi meeg wetch.

Shooting wraps April 3, so check out our Facebook page and follow us on Twitter for all the latest details and insider scoops!

tions and lived there until they built their own home on Cherry Street some years later. Turning his attention to the theatre, Mr. Smith knew that a big benefit movie for the hospital would be an effective way to introduce himself to the community. A movie was selected and Mr. Tremblay noted that that the promotion was effective and the theatre filled to capacity with the entire effort creating a great deal of goodwill. It was a fitting start for the venture. Over the years Mr. Smith made improvements at the theatre but his efforts to convert the Regent to show Cinemascope movies was made almost impossible because of structural limitations. Also the theatre did not meet new standards so Mr.

Smith decided to build a new modern theatre, purchased property adjacent to the Regent at Birch and Lorne Streets and built the "Fox" Theatre in 1955. He also expanded by purchasing the theatres in Thessalon and Espanola.

The old Regent is where the Royal Bank of Canada branch is located.

On the corner Mr. Smith was responsible for the construction of the building that houses the Chapleau News Depot to this day, and behind it was the first Simpsons order office in Chapleau.

After getting his theatre business operating successfully, Mr. Smith became active in Chapleau affairs, serving as president of the Chapleau Board of Trade when the sewage system was installed about 1950 when B.W.

Zufelt was reeve. He also was a member of the Chapleau Rotary Club and the Masonic Lodge. Mr. and Mrs. Smith were active in St. John's Anglican Church and also played golf.

In the mid 1970s they decided to retire and sold their business interests. Mrs. Smith died in 1980, and her husband in 1987.

Mr. Tremblay summed up the 'Master Showman': "Not only was he a superb showman, he was also a kind and generous man and he has been missed by all who had the privilege of knowing him."

Let me share a personal anecdote about Mr. Smith. After my grandfather Harry Morris died in 1957, Mr. Smith greatly assisted my grandmother Lil (Mulligan) Morris with business affairs that had always been my grandfather's responsibility. Often, when I visited her, she would say that Mr. Smith had been over, or was coming the next day. Indeed, Cecil Smith was a "kind and generous man" and one of Chapleau's most successful entrepreneurs.

I have just shared a glimpse of the Cecil and Ruth story and their theatre in Chapleau as told by George Tremblay in 'Break at Nine', and have not even touched Mr. Tremblay's story of the movie industry. A great read!! My email is mj.morris@live.ca
